A PRODUCERS' CENTER HERE

LARGE PRODUCE AND COLD STORAGE PLANT TO BE ERECTED.

TO EMPLOY 10 TO 15

Eggs And Poultry Already Being Received From Fourteen Exchanges. —A Site Near Wabash.

A building 140x65 feet, two stories high and basement, fire proof, will be built within the next eighteen months in Maryville for poultry feeding and dressing with cold storage, according to C. A. Tiffany, manager of the Producers produce plant, which was recently located in this city.

The plant was moved here from St. Joseph because Maryville was more accessible to the producing centers. Temporary quarters have been established in the Keeler building on North Main street.

Mr. Tiffany and T. G. Peters, manager of the Chillicothe plant, arranged for a site for the new plant today when they leased space from the Wabash Railway Co., just south of the stockyards. The Wabash officials here on this matter were L. E. Clarahan, Omaha, division freight agent, W. A. Hopkins, St. Louis, assistant general freight agent, and R. A. Belding, St. Louis, industrial agent.

The establishment of this plant in Maryville, where eggs and poultry will be received from the various exchanges in Northwest Missouri, will mean employment of ten to fifteen men during the year around. At the present time eggs and poultry are being received from fourteen exchanges in Nodaway and Andrew Counties, the produce being trucked here as often as it is necessary.

The Producers Produce Company here will be merged with the Producers Cold Storage Co., of Chillicothe within a short time, according to Mr. Peters. The board of directors of both companies have taken action on this matter and the proposal will be submitted to the stockholders of both companies for final action. The merger is expected to carry by a big vote. The adavantages of the merger of the two companies will result in less overhead expenses as well as having several advantages to it.

Practically all of the Exchanges, elevators and shippers association managers of the Missouri Farmers Association in Northwest Missouri held a meeting recently in Chillicothe. John A. Gex, of Graham, a member of the board of directors of the M. F. A. was a speaker at the meeting. C. A. Tiffany of Maryville also attended.

E. E. Bolin Thrown Beneath Disk; Cut

Farmer Is Painfully Injured When Mule Jumps Forward and Implement Hits a Ditch.

E. E. Bolin, who lives about eight miles south of Maryville, across the road from the Blackman school, suffered a badly cut hand late yesterday afternoon when he was thrown in front of a disk.

Mr. Bolin was driving three mules and one horse. One of the mules was lagging and when Mr. Bolin urged him on he jumped forward. The disk struck a ditch and the driver was thrown forward and in front of the implement. One foot went between the blades, but his left hand was caught beneath them and cut deeply.

Mr. Bolin's small son lifted the disk and released him, the mules and the horse having halted.

OPERA FINE; ALLAN STARS

CHIMES OF NORMANDY WELL GIVEN LAST NIGHT.

ENTIRE CAST IS GOOD

Edna Swanson Ver Harr And Howard E. Preston To Give Artists Concert Tonight.

Ding, dong, bell; ding, dong, bell;
So the legend sayeth,
So the old men tell—

The legend said that the Marquis would come back and claim his castle and lady love, and the old men will tell for years to come how Planquette's "Chimes of Normandy" rang out in the State Teachers College auditorium last night in a comic opera which was spontaneous in its success and lasting in its beauty.

When have music lovers of Maryville found anything of its kind so entrancing, so enjoyable For almost three hours the large audience last night listened to well-finished voices sing light, tuneful music, and when the bells of Corneville had rung down the final curtain, those who had heard this fourth Music Festival number were sorry that it was over.

Russell Allan Stars.

Paschal Monk, the Marquis of Corneville, carried the lead of the opera in fine shape, his baritone voice being a sensation of the evening. But Monk, as did each other member of the cast, bowed to Russell Allan, who, as Gaspard, the miser, was the star of the evening. Allan played this most difficult part of all with professional ease. Never during the evening was he Russell Allan, but always Gaspard, the tottering, bent, half crazy old man who worshipped only his "darling gold."

His face, his hands, his voice—all were expression-full, and even when called back after his solo in the third act he stayed "in character." The success of the evening was the success of Russell Allan.

But, just because old Gaspard was so real, there is no reason to say that others were not good. Miss Elizabeth Mills, burdened with an ungrateful part, was outstanding. Her soprano solos were encored always and her action was commendable. She well-portrayed the egostistical, good-for-nothing peasant girl.

Paschal Monk Realistic.

To Monk again! One would have to search far to find a better leading man, or a more realistic Marquis. He was a favorite, and his voice attracted more perhaps than any other.

Miss Marie Cloud was perfectly cast in the role of Germaine, the lost Marchioness. She played the part with quaint reserve, and her solos were particularly adapted to her rich mezzo-soprano voice. She responded convincingly to the love-making of Henri, the Marquis.

Most of the comedy was furnished by Vernon Barrett, who, as Jean Grenicheux, was a perfect superstitious Normandy fisherman. Barrett's tenor work was good; his acting was the same.

Bernhardt Bronson made a very good Balli. Taking the part almost at the last moment, he did quite well, and, although the role was not an important one, he furnished the required action and color.

Misses Opal Mallory, Oma Ross, Lota Claire Landfather, and Margaret Mills aided the action of the opera as the village maidens, and Clinton Ross was adequate at the notary.

Chorus Not On Stage.

Because of limited stage space, the chorus was stationed in the orchestra seats in front. This was far better than putting it on the stage. More room was left for the principals, and no time was there a crowded feeling.

Charles R. Gardner directed the chorus and Mr. Bronson trained the principals. Much credit is due both of them.

Beautiful cosutmes aided the presentation. The outstanding musical number was the theme song of the opera, "The Legend of the Bells."

Miss Edna Swanson Ver Harr, contralto, and Howard E. Preston, baritone, both of Chicago, will give an artists' concert as the Festival number tonight. Miss Ver Harr is quite well known as a concert singer, and Mr. Preston is a member of the Chicago Opera Co.

These artists will remain in Maryville tomorrow and will sing leads in Handel's "Messiah," which will be presented by the College Chorus under the direction of Mr. Gardner.

WOULD CLOSE QUAIL SEASON

BARNARD DELEGATION APPEARS BEFORE COUNTY COURT

BRIDGES ASKED ALSO

Court Points Out That Repairs Up to $25 Should Be Done By Township Boards

Protection of the quail of Nodaway County was asked of the County Court yesterday by a delegation from Barnard, composed of A. C. Nester, A. M. Rasco and Wilmer Clayton. They presented a petition which asks the court to submit to the voters at the November election a proposal to close the hunting season on quail for two years.

The shooting of quail has been a cause of controversy for several years, a large number of farmers maintaining that in the destruction of the birds the farmer loses his best friends. There are some who believe the quail is not entitled to protection because it eats grain and fruit. The friends of the bird, however, declare it does immeasurable good, by destroying chinch bugs, worms and other plant pests. The state law contains a clause which provides that any county may close the hunting season for not more than two years.

Other delegations appeared before the court to ask for new bridges or repairing of old ones. The county judges admit that there are bridges in all parts of the county which need attention but the court is handicapped by lack of funds. In many cases, it was pointed out, the repairs should be made by the township boards, which are required by law to make all which amount to less than $25. The township boards also are expected to pay up to $100 of the cost of new bridges.

The court has done much bridge work but much more remains to be done. White Cloud, Lincoln, Atchison and Nodaway townships are reported in better condition than other sections of the county.

Among those who appeared before the court yesterday were Roy Manley, who asked for a bridge about three and one-half miles southwest of Barnard; George Loomis, southeast of Ravenwood, a trustee for Jackson township; and James Brady, a member of the Washington township board.

The latter asked for a new railroad crossing about two miles north of Guilford, to connect the highway with a new bridge over the Platte river.

FARM RELIEF DEBATE IS ON

CORN BELTERS CRITICIZE HAUGEN BILL OPPONENTS.

DRY LAW IS DEFENDED

Prosperity, Happiness and Peace Credited to 18th Amendment—to Honor Jefferson.

Washington, May 4.—The general farm relief debate got under way in the House this afternoon amid a barrage of oratorical fireworks.

Representatives of the corn belt criticized opponents of the 375 million-dollar Haugen price stabilization bill for seeking to organize an industrial bloc of the ultra-conservatives and alienate the support of the East to the measure.

This bill is opposed by President Coolidge and Secretary of Agriculture Jardine. Representative Pou, Democrat of South Carolina, said in offering the Haugen bill the West was attempting to hand the South a gold brick.

Drys Launch Defense.

Washington, May 4.—The drys launched a stiff defense of prohibition in the Senate today. Senator Shephard, Democrat of Texas, co-author of the Volstead act, read numerous statements from business leaders to bolster his declarations that prosperity, happiness and peace have followed the adoption of the Eighteenth Amendment.

Defending the fifty-year educational campaign of the drys, Senator Ferris, Democrat of Michigan, appealed to the Senate not to surrender American power and obligations and to make the country safe for American youth.

Celebration Committee Named.

Washington, May 4.—President Coolidge today appointed a commission of sixteen members, four Senators, four representatives and eight persons representing the public, to arrange for a sesqui-centennial celebration in honor of the signing of the Declaration of Independence and the death of Thomas Jefferson. Henry Ford was one of the commissioners selected. The celebration will be held July 4 but the place has not yet been selected.

Feminist Bloc Heard From.

Washington, May 4.—The House feminist bloc came out strongly today for the suggestion by 21-year-old Helen Maloney of Brooklyn demanding that the young women of the nation should be allowed to participate in the summer training activities, similar to the camps conducted by the government for the young men.

Two of the members, Representatives, Florence Kahn, Republican of California, and Mary North, Democrat of New Jersey, thought such an undertaking should be under the auspices of the federal government.

Plan for Infirmary Still Being Debated

Four Designs Are Considered by the County Court—All Similar in Principle.

Late this afternoon the Nodaway County Court was still considering plans for a new county infirmary and no definite selection had been made. Four principal plans were receiving attention. They were submitted by R. C. Dodds, Bolckow; Ray L. Maul, Maryville; E. R. Leaverton, Lincoln, Neb., and J. O. Miller, Maryville Lumber Co.

The four plans are much alike in principle. They all call for a two-story center section with one-story wings on each side, and all are designed so as to utilize the old basement excavation. Both men and women patients will be cared for in dormitories instead of the small, individual rooms as in the old building. Sick rooms will be provided, however.

Quarters for the superintendent and his family will be included in the new building.

Skidmore Farmer Is Thrown From Horse

J. E. Hart, a farmer near Skidmore, was injured about the head and back when he was thrown from a horse yesterday morning near his home, three and one-half miles northwest of Skidmore.

The horse became frightened at a tractor and threw the rider to the ground. Mr. Hart, who is 53 years old, landed on his head and shoulders.

Thinks Europe Won't Consider Hague Meet

President Coolidge Feels That Little Response Would Greet Such A Conference.

Washington, May 4.—President Coolidge does not believe that the European powers would consider a third Hague peace conference now. His spokesman said today that the President feels that Europe was faced with such gigantic problems that little response would greet a call for such a conference.

Bank Investigation in Trial of Its Officials

Kansas City, May 4.—Inside operations of the defunct Commonwealth National Bank of Kansas City, which failed in a four million-dollar crash in 1922, were investigated here today by the federal government in the trial of G. N. Smith, L. C. Smith and M. M. Moss, indicted officials of the bank.

INSURGENTS TO AID OF IOWAN

SENATE BLOC TO HELP BROOKHART IN HIS WARFARE.

TO WAR ON COOLIDGE

Result Means Much in Republican Circles This Year—Borah Included in Revolting Group.

Washington, May 4.—A formitable little band of Senate insurgents, six of them Republicans, have agreed to invade Iowa within the next thirty days and help Senator Smith W. Brookhart in his political warfare against the Coolidge administration, International News Service learned today.

Brookhart, ousted from his seat in the Senate, by a coalition of Democrats and conservative Republicans, led by Senator William Butler, chairman of the Republican national committee, is striving to wrest the nomination from the veteran administration supporter, Senator Albert Cummins.

Brookhart is running on an anti-Coolidge platform and the fact that six Republican Senators are planning to aid him affords a significant insight into the proportions of the western revolt against the White House.

The seven Senators who have agreed to help the Iowa insurgent in his war against Coolidge and Butler include Borah of Idaho, Howell and Norris of Nebraska, Frazier and Nye of North Dakota, La Follette of Wisconsin, all Republicans, and Shipstead, Farmer Labor leader from Minnesota.

Either singly or in pairs, as the situation permits, they plan to leave Washington between now and June 7, the date of the Iowa primary, and urge Iowa voters to send Brookhart back to the Senate.

The result of this revolutionary invasion may be the most pointed defeat of administration policies in a Republican state that has occurred since the great Coolidge landslide in 1924.

PEACE OFFER TURNED DOWN

BRITAIN DECLARES GENERAL STRIKE MUST END FIRST.

VIOLENCE IS FEARED

Five Million Organized Laborers in England Are Backing Demands of Miners.

London, May 4.—The British government will enter no negotiations to settle the present industrial crisis until the labor leaders have called off the general strike now in progress.

The government sent this untimatium to the Trades Union Congress in response to an indirect suggestion that the Trades Union Congress was still willing to consider resumption of negotiations.

Amsterdam, May 4.—Unions of twenty-three countries, members of the International Federation of Trades Unions, are prepared to back the general strike in Great Britain, according to Secretary Oudegiest.

Funds of the international federation will be available to the trades unions congress, Oudegiest said. He predicted, however that the British unions will be able to carry on for more than a month without any financial assistance.

Arrest Warrants Out.

London, May 4.—The government has sworn out warrants for the arrest of every leading communist in Great Britain, it was learned today. These warrants, it was learned, will be held in abeyance and will not be executed unless the communists engaged in seditious activities.

The arrest of the communist member of Parliament was described as having been taken for exemplary reasons.

London, May 4.—Great Britain's industrial warfare this afternoon took on the aspect of actual warfare. Violence was reported from several areas. Scotland Yards ordered 100,000 special constables on duty tomorrow morning.

London, May 4.—The British government moved rapidly today to check the industrial warfare which, at noon, appeared to have the nation industrially paralyzed.

First hints of trouble came when the government announced that three additional regiments of infantry and one regiment of artillery have been ordered to Liverpool. Two regiments of infantry are already on duty in Liverpool.

Fear Dockers Trouble.

Reports were current that the government has information that serious trouble may break out at Liverpool with the dock strikers. The government also moved against Communists when S. Saklatuill, a Parsee communist member of parliament, was placed under arrest. Rumors were current this afternoon that the government intends to arrest all of the strike leaders, although there was no confirmation of this from official sources.

It was indicated, however, that steps have already been taken to place under arrest all persons who make inflamatory speeches.

The Trades Union Congress is considering the extension of the strike, it was learned today. Plans are now before the Council of the Congress for calling out 190,000 shop assistants, warehouse men, clerks and porters, thus closing down the mercantile life of Great Britain. It is stated, however, that food shops would not be affected by the order. Taxicab drivers may be called out tonight.

The government today took action which, it is believed, is aimed at preventing the circulation of the Trades Union Congress' orders for conduct of the strike.

Police Get Orders.

Under the power of the employers' act, regulations were issued authorizing any policeman, under the order of of a cabinet minister, to enter by force any premice suspected of being used for the purpose of printing or distributing documents calculated to cause violence or sedition or interfere with the distribution of food, water, fuel or light for the maintenance of locomotives, and to seize anything found.

This regulation is a virtual suspension of civil liberties and destroys the old theory that an Englishman's home is his castle.

Members of the seamen's union today are taking a ballot to determine whether they shall join the general strike movement. Meanwhile, the cross-channel service has already been greatly reduced and the coast-wise shipping is reported almost on a standstill due to the failure of the dock workers to report for duty.

Labor In Revolt.

London, May 4.—Organized labor of Great Britain is in revolt.

Five million men are backing up the miners' demand for what they consider a living wage and proper working conditions. At midnight a general strike of the industrial workers became effective throughout the country.

This widespread demonstration will, unless speedily terminated, cause untold suffering, with the loss of millions in money.

The last hours before the general strike call went forth were anxious ones. Thousands of citizens assembled in Parliament Square and the adjoining streets, while within the house, ministers of the crown and former ministers, representing labor, battled in support of their respective contentions.

Baldwin Criticises Labor.

Premier Baldwin criticised the labor leaders on the ground that, in ordering the general strike, they were threatening the basis of orderly government and were nearer to proclaiming civil war than Great Britain had been for centuries.

Ramsay MacDonald, the labor leader, said the country faced a situation whose end and evolution not even the keenest observer could visualize.

Winston Churchill, chancellor of the exchequer, asserted that if this conflict were fought out to its conclusion, it could only mean the end of parliamentary government or its decisive victory.

WEIGHED ONLY 98 POUNDS

Helped by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Cleveland, Ohio.—"I have really had all kinds of trouble. After having my first baby, I lost weight, no matter what I did. Then a doctor told me I would be better if I had another baby, which I did. But I got worse, was always sickly and went down to 98 pounds. My neighbor told me about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, as it helped her very much, so I tried it. After taking four bottles, I weigh 116 pounds. It has just done wonders for me and I can do my housework now without one bit of trouble." —Mrs. M. Riessinger, 10004 Nelson Ave., Cleveland, Ohio.

If some good fairy should appear and offer to grant your heart's desire, what would you choose?

Wealth? It's a transient thing that brings it's own cares.

Happiness? It's an elusive thing which we keep by giving away.

Health? That's the best gift. Health is riches that gold cannot buy and surely health is cause enough for happiness.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound may be the good fairy who offers you the priceless gift of better health.

Farm Bloc Luncheons Proving Successful

Washington, May 4.—The senate farm bloc's daily luncheons at the Capitol to line up senators for enactment of farm legislation before adjournment are proving successful.

A large number of Democrats were invited to attend the luncheon Saturday and the farm bloc leaders are hopeful of adding them to the bloc membership which has grown from eleven to more than a score since the luncheon campaign was inaugurated five days ago.

Senator Norbeck, Republican, South Dakota, one of the original eleven, told the United Press that the group expected to secure enactment of the so-called "Committee of Twenty-two" farm relief bill within the next two weeks.

The bill, he said, may be changed slightly to satisfy the desires of the "cotton group" and otherwise to fit needs of farmers in all sections of the country.

"It will be the first farm aid measure to come to a vote."

Mrs. D. Ward King and Mr. and Mrs. Byron King and son of Maitland were Maryville visitors yesterday. Mrs. Lige Rowlette and daughter, Martha, of Maitland were in Maryville today.

Baking is an art. When one finds a really truly good baker—an artist—it is rare and an opportunity not to be overlooked. The Reuillard Studio produces results that are unexcelled. Try Reuillard's breads and cakes. You will be convinced.

—MB—

For picnics and lunches these lovely warm days, sandwiches are the "best of all." The success of any sandwich depends upon the bread of which it is made. Infinite patience and time spent upon the filling is wasted if the bread is not good. Don't run the risk of having poor sandwiches. Get your bread at the South Side Bakery. The best in pastry. Now don't forget.

—MB—

The Price Furniture Company is showing lovely new things. Curtains, draperies, rugs, furniture, in fact if it's for the home—go to Price's. New curtains from there will make your old house look like new.

Service—that is the keynote of the Maryville Drug Co. Fountain service which is perfect. The best in ice creams and ices. Whitman's and Donaldson's candies that are done up most attractively for Mother's day gifts. In any size. And, after all, what reminds mother of those old sweetheart days more than a box of candy? Why, Candy was the first gift that father gave mother that Sunday evening before they left for church. Give her candy—from the Maryville Drug—for old times' sake.

—MB—

A last reminder that whatever your remembrance to mother be, you really should send a card or enclose a card with your flowers or gift. Yehle's have a splendid collection of them on display in the cross aisle on the main floor. Artistic colorings. Some are on parchment.

—MB—

This is National Baby Week. Don't forget that the Westfall Store has the loveliest and most artistic of baby things. See them. If what you want is not in stock, you can leave your order.

Paris capitulates to the vogue of dark, sheer crepes and Miss Keiflein interprets it gaily. It is a new, subtly flattering, youthfully distinguished mode that Paris gives us—a mode every woman may interpret according to her whim. Graduation days draw nigh, too, and Miss Keiflein is prepared to offer the sweet girl graduate the most distinctive in graduation frocks. Clever wash silks, too, are stunning for the season. And don't forget that Miss Keiflein specializes in clever hats.

—MB—

If it's a Mother's day gift that you are seeking, try Kuchs Brothers. They have artistic cards as well as gifts of all kinds that would suit every mother. If there is any difficulty in finding a gift there it will be deciding upon any one thing. You will want several. What could be nicer than a kodak for mother? This store has a wide variety from which to choose.

—MB—

Now I ask you—isn't it a sin and a crime to shut out this gorgeous spring sunshine with musty, dusty curtains and drapes. Especially when it is the easiest and safest thing in the world to phone the Dreyer Cleaning Company, Hanamo 290 or Farmers 121 and have these cleaners, Master workers, pick them up and restore them to their pristine beauty. This company offers one-day service, when necessary, you know.

Just what you are looking for to take along on that vacation trip that you are planning for this summer easily packed into a small space and require so little care. Dainty and exquisite, indeed, are the stepins, chemises and bloomers that are being shown in the corset department at the Yehle Dry Goods Co. And here are the reasons why you should wear Rayon Munsingwear. It is practical and economical because one gets a better wearing garment for less money. It is well-fitting and full-cut. If a child doesn't like oatmeal, win over with famous "Quaker Flavor"

THE reason some children don't eat their oatmeal without urging is that they're not given the right kind.

There is a great difference in the flavor of oats. And flavor, above all things, is needed to win a child's appetite.

Quaker Oats has a unique flavor; a rich and toasty flavor you'll find in no other brand. That is why millions will accept no other kind.

Quaker milling, too, retains much of the "bulk" of oats—which makes laxatives less often needed. Protein, carbohydrates, minerals, vitamines and this "bulk" make Quaker Oats an excellent food balance.

Today, get Quick Quaker (cooks in 3 to 5 minutes), or regular Quaker Oats as you have always known them. Grocers have both kinds.

FARM GLIMPSES

BY BILLY TILSON.

Homer Lawrence, northwest of Barnard, will commence planting corn the first of this week. He is double disking all his ground.

Henry Behm, west of Hopkins, was planting corn last week and reports the ground working fine. He says vegetation of every kind needs a good rain in that locality.

Frank Davis, southeast of Hopkins, was planting corn last week and says the ground seemed cold when first turned over but a couple of hours sunshine warmed the ground so corn put in would soon start sprouting.

Reports from all over the county is that a large acreage of corn will be planted this week if favorable weather continues. Quite a few planted the last of the week. Farmers over the county put in a strenuous week and a large per cent of them have their ground in excellent condition. A good soaking rain is needed all over this territory in some places in the county the wheat and oats are suffering for moisture. The meadows are now damaged to quite an extent and alfalfa will be light for the first cutting.

R. J. Holmes, Duffy Wallace and L. R. McMillen, northeast of Clearmont, were Maryville visitors Saturday. They say a good rain is badly needed up in that vicinity. Oats, wheat and grass are not making much growth, they say. A few have commenced planting corn and most of the farmers have their ground ready but think the ground too cold as the germ in the corn isn't very strong.

Charles Hornbuckle, southeast of Clearmont, has a fine bunch of young steers in the feed lot, also a fine bunch of hogs running with them.

Mack Ulmer, southwest of Hopkins, planted around 100 acres of corn last week. Mack will commence today on the Ed Hornbuckle farm where he will put in sixty-five acres and from there will go to the Koger farm and will plant thirty-five acres on that farm. Mr. Ulmer's neighbors say his working hours are from daylight until dark and that the daylight saving act would not be of any benefit to him.

John McMahon, near Skidmore, says a few of the farmers have planted some corn and if weather is favorable quite an acreage will be put in the ground this week.

Ernest Bainum, east of Skidmore, will soon be through planting corn. Ernest is one of those farmers that believes in early planting and he very seldom fails to raise a good yield and a good quality.

Owens and Carden, southeast of Quitman, lost one of the best steers in their feed lot Friday night was valued around $100.00.

Around Our Town

So "Padge" is dead——

No longer will those coldly disdainful eyes rest upon the visitor to the office of the Nodaway County clerk. No longer will they register supreme indifference and turn aside in height of boredom if the visitor appears to be unequipped with candy. And no longer will that picture of aloofness be roused into galvanic action if a sudden blow descend upon the county clerk.

For Padge was poisoned this morning.

Padge, as you may have guessed, was County Clerk Fred Smith's dog. Among the more or less regular visitors to the county clerk's office he had many acquaintances whom he accepted upon terms of mild friendship. But he had no intimates except the members of the Smith family.

Them he would follow with the greatest of devotion. He might let the casual friend pat him on the head, scratch his back or feed him candy. But that was all. It was only the Smiths whom he considered worthy of any concern. He obeyed their commands and he guarded their interests.

It was a common prank at the courthouse for a visitor to feign anger at the county clerk and to strike him or commence a scuffle. Unless it was too flagrantly a joke, the ruse never failed. Padge was up in an instant, with terrifying barks, to launch himself upon the intruder. A word from the master and he subsided, but with suspicion. And the joker never again would quite re-establish himself.

Where Padge got the poison remains a mystery. He was in the Smith home when he became ill. Milk and other home remedies were administered, but he died in twenty minutes.

Requiescat in Pace.

An incident happened in a local clothing store Saturday which harkened back to the days when mothers were boss and sons hung onto the apron strings. Four women, presumably a mother, grandmother, an aunt, and a sister, accompanied a likewise seeming ly 19-year-old lad into the store.

A clerk approached them. "What can I do for you?" he queried.

And the four women, with one accord and with the precision which can only come from hours of practice, pointed to the lad and said, "He wants a cap."

A convention of B. Y. P. U. workers of the northwest district of Missouri will be held in Maryville the last of this month. Through some misunderstanding, a half dozen delegates appeared at the local First Baptist Church early last Friday morning to attend the meetings.

Weather Forecasting Accuracy Increasing

Observers Find Direct Connection Between Temperature Of Ocean And Rainfall In Southern California.

Washington, May 4.—The first step in making accurate long-range weather forecasts has been taken, according to Dr. T. Wayland Vaughan, director of the Scripps Institute of Oceanography.

Dr. Vaughan told the American Geophysical Union, in session here, of a ten-year study made by Dr. George F. McEwen, one of his associates at La Jolla, Calif., to find if there was a connection between the rainfall in Southern California and the temperature of the ocean.

"Dr. McEwen found in nine out of the ten years that there was a connection," Dr. Vaughan said.

"The work proved that when the ocean temperature was lower in the late summer and early fall that the rainfall of the following season was above normal.

"We believe that sufficient evidence has been accumulated to make it possible to predice the rainfall for southern California on this basis."

Dr. Vaughan urges more intense study of ocean temperatures and currents over the whole world. Many scientists believe that it will be possible to make long-range weather predictions with considerable accuracy once the connection between the weather and oceans temperatures and currents is more fully understood.

It's easy to lay a MULE-HIDE Roof right!

EITHER carpenter, contractor or home builder experience no difficulty in applying Mule-Hide Multiple Shingles—four-in-one—whether applying on a new home or over a present old roof.

These Multiple Shingles are made in strips 36" long and are self-spaced. All the applicator is required to do is drive a nail ½" above each cut-out slot. It's almost impossible to do the job wrong.

Another big time saver in applying this Mule-Hide 4-in-1 Shingle is this: You only lay 100 Mule-Hide Shingles to cover the same roof area as if you applied 1000 ordinary wood shingles. Figure the time and labor saving.

The big advantages are these. You are never required to paint Mule-Hide Shingles because the natural slate surfacing never fades or bleaches (artificial dyed mineral surfacing does) and the big thing to remember is this: You can't burn slate—that is the reason why Mule-Hide Shingles (and roll roofing) are fire-safe—and so recognized by the Insurance Underwriters who allow a special price concession when these shingles are applied either on new homes or over present old, curled and decayed roofs.

Come in and see us before you buy your next roof—and save money.

Good Work Wins

The following statement appeared in an article in the Republican of Galena, Kansas, for March 26, 1926:

"The Standard Oil Company (Indiana) is the greatest commercial organization in the United States and its efforts and business penetrate the known world. Its policy toward employes may well be used as the criterion for all business. It is the most liberal that has been established. Every employe has that golden opportunity to prove his worth and his reward is in his own grasp."

It is natural that this policy should meet the approval of all true Americans for it is essentially democratic in character. But such unsolicited praise is very gratifying to the management of the Standard Oil Company (Indiana).

The Standard Oil Company (Indiana) believes in Fairness, Justice and Equity, and it believes in giving all its employes equal chances to make good.

In the huge organization of the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) every employe, no matter what his task, is recognized as an individual, with rights equal to those of any other man.

Good work, honest effort, and ability are quickly observed and appreciated. Promotions reward the deserving, and many of the executives of the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) today first entered the Company in a humble capacity.

Success in the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) does not lean upon superficial props. It is built upon a solid base of actual worth. Golden opportunities for advancement are not shaken like apples from a tree, but earned by steady climbing on the ladder of earnest work.

This democratic policy has resulted in an organization of loyal, interested men and women who work with enthusiasm, knowing that every effort is appreciated.

The close cooperation of its employes makes possible, to a large degree, the comprehensive service the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) is able to render the thirty million people of the Middle West.

Every man in the organization is not only interested in his task, but anxious to do it better—and you sense this enthusiasm at every Standard Oil Company (Indiana) Service Station.

It is this wonderful spirit prevailing throughout the organization that has made it possible for the Company to take its place among the foremost Service organizations of America.

THESE WOMEN

by MALCOLM DUART

©1926 BY NEA SERVICE INC.

BEGIN HERE TODAY

AUDREY MORTON, and a Kansas City stage girl named NONA, each is deeply in love with Audrey's guardian, HARRY MORTON.

Morton, immensely attractive to women, unmarried, middle-aged, and rich, maintains an expensive home in Springfield and an apartment in Kansas City, between which he divides his time.

Trying to avert Audrey from her love for him, he directs his Secretary, JOHN PARRISH, to be her companion whenever possible. Audrey treats Parrish with disdain. Seeing that Morton is much in the company of actresses, Audrey herself decides to go on the stage and she and Nona form a dancing team.

At the end of the last chapter, ABE SUNSHINE, producer of revues, has just come into the room where Audrey and Nona are rehearsing, and says that an angry woman has been on the telephone, asking for Audrey.

Nona, poising an instant on tiptoe, swept into an intricate movement with graceful east.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XXIX.

The girls halted.

"Goodness! More trouble?" asked Audrey, faintly.

"Who was it?" Nona wanted to know.

Abe shook his head. "She wouldn't leave any name. She said she was sure you were here, or were going to be here. I suppose she'll drop in."

"I think I know," said Morton. "You remember the young gentleman we had on the grill here this morning?"

Abe and Audrey nodded. Nona looked at them in inquiry. Briefly Morton told her what had occurred. "Well, you know the girl who dances with him is very much attached to him. The chances are that he has told her that we abused him, and she blames the whole thing on Audrey."

He laughed as he turned to the girl. "You WOULD go on the stage, would you?"

Nona breathed a long sigh. "Well, the poor fish!" She was indignant. "Ran right to the girl, to tell his troubles! And now she's jealous because Audrey was his dancing partner, for three days!"

Mr. Sunshine bobbed his head with vigor. "You get a girl like that started," he said, "about a fellow she's struck on, and you can't tell what she'll do."

Audrey sat down, quickly, as if her knees had weakened under her. "What will I do?" she wailed.

Nona patted her soothingly on the back. "We'll look after you," she said. "But you'd better have some one along with you, all the time."

The dancing lesson went on, with Audrey somewhat absent mindedly obeying the instructions that Nona gave her. The two men sat and watched, with Abe offering a suggestion now and then. Once, going to the piano, Morton waved the pianist aside, and himself sat down and played. At the end of a bar or two, he turned.

"Stop a moment, Audrey," he said, "Nona, will you do a few steps of one of your own dances"

Audrey sat down, and Nona, poising an instant on tiptoe, swept into an intricate movement with graceful ease. Morton speeded the tempo, and for a few moments, bending, in a dance wilder than Audrey ever had seen.

Morton stopped the music with a crash.

"You've still got it, Nona," he said. She bowed to him, as if she were accepting applause from a crowded theater.

"Absolutely, you're a great dancer!" said Abe, with sincere conviction. "How come you're only doing little parts, and teaming up in cabaret shows?"

Nona shrugged her shoulders. "Things don't always break right, you know," she said.

She sat down beside Audrey, and the younger girl put her arm about Nona's waist. "You're lovely as—as——"

"A black panther," supplied Morton. "I've thought about that simile before, in connection with Nona."

"She IS like a panther," said Audrey. "Isn't she, Mr. Sunshine?"

"About panthers I know nothing," said Abe, "but I know a dancer when I see one. It's a shame she ain't using her stuff. Why don't you help her?" he asked Morton.

Audrey's guardian looked at his ward, thoughtfully, and then at Nona. "Audrey," he said, "let's be Nona's angel, and get her started!"

Before she could answer, Morton turned to Abe.

"Will Audrey be all right? You saw her dance."

The produced pondered. "Well, she won't be any Pavlowa, exactly, but she'll do all right in this show we're putting on. But Nona, she's a dancer!"

His black eyes shone. "Personally, I'd like to mix into it, if somebody could get her a real engagement."

Morton arose. "Maybe you can mix into it," he replied.

Nona had been listening to the conversation, gravely. She rose to her feet, now, and extending her hand to to Audrey, said: "Come on. We'll have to work."

For two hours the girls labored, Nona patiently leading, Audrey following the orders she received. Both were tired when Morton finally told them to quit. Mr. Sunshine long since had gone back to his own desk.

Morton waited while the girls changed their clothes again, behind the curtain, and accompanied them as they passed through Abe's office. Mr. Sunshine held Morton a moment.

"Miss Morton won't stay on the stage," he said. "She's the marrying kind."

"Sage words from an expert," laughed Morton.

Audrey bowed her head in confusion and hurried on, but Nona paused.

"We're all the marrying kind," she said, "but we don't always get the right chance."

Morton's car was waiting outside, the chauffeur napping at the wheel. The authentic breath of spring was in the air now, and small boys, shooting dice on the pavement, were using the running board of the car as a convenient bench to sit upon.

Morton poked at the boys good naturedly with his cane.

"If it wouldn't attract so much attention, I'd like to shoot craps with them," he confided to the two girls.

They entered the car, and Morton told the driver to go to the office.

"I'll get Parrish," he said, "and we'll all take dinner together."

Audrey objected. "Why do we have to have him tagging along?"

Nona watched the younger girl's face, her eyes half closed. "What's wrong with him?" she asked.

Morton answered the question. "Nothing, really, except that he has undertaken to give orders to Audrey. That is always a mistake in dealing with young women."

There was a change in his voice that attracted the attention of both girls. His tone had dropped, as if in dejection. He bowed his head, and stared moodily at the floor.

"What is it, daddy? asked Audrey, squeezing his arm anxiously.

He shook his head. "Oh, just a thought. Audrey—" he turned and looked at her intently—"in all your life, have I actually forbidden you to do anything?"

"Why no, I think not. Why?"

His gaze dropped again, and there was a long delay before he answered.

"Once," he said, "there was a young man who tried to give orders to the girl he loved. And he broke his heart."

Parrish eagerly accepted the invitation to dinner, and while Morton waited, he arranged his desk in a hurry, and prepared to depart.

"My new dress suit and knickerbockers are done, sir," he said, taking his hat from the office closet. "Shall I go and put them on?"

"Both of them?" Morton inquired, facetiously.

"No sir. I mean just the evening clothes," Parrish said, without smiling. "Miss Morton has not seen me in them yet, at all."

"She has been deprived of a great pleasure," the older man responded, gravely. "We'll drive you to your home, and leave you there while you primp, and make yourself beautiful. Then we'll go on to my apartment and do likewise. You can join us there."

Parrish stared as he saw Nona sitting in the machine, and carefully climbed to the far corner of the tonneau. Morton saw a curious little flash in the girl's eyes, as Parrish settled himself.

He sat on one of the small folding seats, and with great care turned his back to Nona. Morton sat in the middle, between the two girls.

Nona was quiet, as they rode to Parrish's boarding place, and Audrey refused to address herself to the young man at all. She nodded coldly as he got out. Nona was looking out the window, on the other side of the car, when he lifted his hat and turned away.

"Nona, my dear, you're planning something," said Morton, touching her lightly on the sleeve as the car moved on again.

His tone was mischievous, as he continued: "Black panthers sometimes spring, don't they?"

"What do you mean?" Audrey asked.

Morton chuckled. "Nothing, particularly. I was just doing a little mind-reading. Nona has been thinking so hard I could hear the gears working, and the motor back-firing in her brain."

He refused to commit himself further. Nona remained silent, but from time to time she cast quick speculative glances at Audrey, in her corner on Morton's other side.

When they reached the Morton apartment, Audrey asked Nona to come in.

Nona demurred. "You people and Mr. Parrish are going to be dressed up festively," she said. "I'd better run home and change."

"Take the car over," Morton assented. "Tell the driver to wait for you, and come back when you're ready."

He and Audrey entered the building as Nona drove away.

"How do you like Nona, now that you know her better?" Morton asked.

"She's a dear," Audrey said. They left the elevator, and entered their drawing room. "I'll tell you something. She said to me once, that you would never marry me—that you looked on me as a child. Daddy, there's something in your eyes when you look at her, too."

She wrapped her arms around one of his, and held him close for a moment. "I know you never are going to marry her, either."

"How do you know that?" he inquired, amused.

"Because you don't love her. You just like her," said Audrey, gleefully. "And I'm so glad!"

She ran upstairs, and Morton followed her, more slowly.

When the party was reassembled, there developed a short argument as to where they should eat. Audrey cast the deciding vote.

"Let's go to some queer place," she said. "I like to look at funny people—people who act outlandishly. Let's not go to one of the big places where you're bored!"

Morton gave brief directions to the chauffeur, and ten minutes later they arrived at a basement establishment, its doorway illuminated by a lamp in a huge blue shade.

"This is a Russian tea room." Morton said, helping the girls to alight.

The four of them descended the stair, and were greeted by a youth in a yellow smock. His cheek-bones were high, and his blond hair was erect in a stiff pompadour. They handed him their wraps, and followed him through a noisy throng to a table, at the far end of the room.

Another man in a smock brought tea, and placed it before them.

Nona, while Morton ordered food, idly looked over the diners. Their party had attracted attention. They were the only guests in evening clothes, and Audrey dropped her eyes as she saw the stares directed her way.

Nona reached across the table and tapped her on the hand.

"Don't look now," she said, quietly, "but in a moment, turn and see who is there at the second table. I'll tell you when!"

HOGS AND LAMBS LOWER. CATTLE WERE HIGHER.

Kansas City Stock Yards, May 3.—Fat cattle were strong to 25 cents higher, the first advance recorded on any Monday in several weeks past and the first material check the downward movement in prices has received since early April. There was considerable strength at the advance. A period of light receipts in Chicago would extend the upward swing. Hogs were 10 to 15 cents lower extending the decline that occurred Saturday to 25 cents under the high point last week. Sheep and lambs were 15 to 25 cents lower with trade fairly active.

Today's Receipts.

Receipts today were 12,000 cattle, 10,000 hogs and 9,000 sheep, compared with 14,000 cattle, 12,000 hogs and 8,000 sheep a week ago, and 12,850 cattle, 8,350 hogs and 12,600 sheep a year ago.

Beef Cattle.

Receipts of cattle in Chicago were moderate today and the market advanced. This is the first Monday in more than two months that the Chicago run has not been a depressing influence in the general market. Here prices were strong to 25 cents higher than last week's close and 25 to 40 cents above a week ago. No choice to prime steers arrived. The best here sold at $9 to $9.50. Medium to good steers brought $8.25 to $8.90 and plain to fair kinds $7.50 up. Southern grass fat steers in the quarantine division sold at $6.25 to $7.50. Cows and heifers were 10 to 15 cents higher. Cows sold up to $8 and heifers up to $9.50. Veal calves were strong, top $10.

Stockers and Feeders.

Strong prices prevailed for stockers and feeders the result of higher prices for fat cattle. Some choice Texas stockers sold up to $9.25 and fleshy feeders up to $9. The bulk of the thin steers brought $8 to $8.50.

Sheep and Lambs.

Sheep and lambs declined 15 to 25 cents. Spring lambs were off the most and winter fed lambs the least. From now on few fed lambs will be available. Today they sold at $14.50 to $15; shorn lambs $12.50 to $13.25; spring lambs $15.40 to $16; shorn wethers $8.50 to $9, and shorn ewes $7.50 to $8. The spring lambs came from Arizona and California.

Closing Grain Review.

Chicago, May 4.—Grain prices closed lower on the Chicago Board of Trade today.

Wheat was sharply off and the other pits were influenced by this grain.

Wheat was sharply off in all deliveries. The grain opened steady but pressure was soon felt, due to the seriousness of the British situation and the condition of Winnipeg. A few slight rallies were checked by heavy liquidation. The bullish news as to the unchanged weather conditions in the Northwest was entirely overshadowed by the bearish effect of Liverpool. The market is steady for spot wheat but very unfavorable for the deferred deliveries.

Corn closed fractionally lower in all deliveries. This grain was under pressure throughout the day's trading.

Oats also closed fractionally lower. This grain showed no definite trend but like corn was influenced by the wheat pit.

Provisions closed lower.
